Manual of Guidelines and Assessment Procedures for the Assessment of Medical Physicists for Migration Purposes

Applicants must read these guidelines before completing the application form

1. Introduction

The Australasian College of Physical Scientists and Engineers in Medicine (ACPSEM) has been approved in accordance with the Migration Regulations 1994 as the assessing authority for the occupation:

Medical Physicist ANZSCO 234914

A medical physicist is a person with substantial tertiary qualifications in physics who actively and directly applies their knowledge of the principles of physics to the care of patients. Sub-disciplines of medical physics include, but are not limited to, radiation oncology medical physics, the physics of radiological imaging and nuclear medicine medical physics.

If you wish to apply to migrate to Australia as a Medical Physicist under the General Skilled Migration categories, you must have a skills assessment from ACPSEM to include with your migration application to Australia's Department of Immigration and Border Protection.

You must meet all of ACPSEM's educational, professional and English language requirements to receive a positive skills assessment.

You need to be aware that successfully migrating to Australia as a Medical Physicist is no guarantee of membership of ACPSEM, employment as a Medical Physicist in Australia, inclusion on any current or future list of registered Medical Physicists, or acceptance into any accreditation program for a sub-discipline of Medical Physics, nor does it imply that ACPSEM considers that you are competent in a particular sub-discipline of Medical Physics.

ACPSEM is not able to give prospective migrants advice on any aspect of the migration process except skills assessment. All migration-related queries must be directed to the Department of Immigration and Border Protection. Information and contact details are available at www.immi.gov.au.

ACPSEM will:

- process your assessment fee and issue you with a receipt;
- assess your application against its requirements;
- request any additional information required;
- finalise your assessment on the basis of the evidence provided; and
- provide you with the results of your migration skills assessment stating whether you have been found suitable or not suitable as a Medical Scientist (Medical Physicist) for the purposes of migration to Australia under the General Skilled Migration categories.

It is your responsibility to provide all relevant information to ACPSEM and keep ACPSEM informed of:

- your current contact details; and
- any new information which has the potential to affect your skills assessment.

ACPSEM cannot process your application until the application fee has been received and you have provided all the information and documentation required.

ACPSEM aims to finalise your assessment within eight weeks of receipt of your application. If further information is required, there may be a delay in completing your assessment.

IMPORTANT

ACPSEM exists to promote and further the development of the physical sciences and engineering as applied to medicine in Australia and New Zealand. However, it is not an assessing authority for any engineering occupations. If you think your qualifications and experience may be more appropriate to the occupation Engineer - Biomedical Engineer (ANZSCO 234514), you should seek advice from the assessing authority for engineering occupations, Engineers Australia.

Information and contact details are available on the Engineers Australia website, www.engineersaustralia.org.au.

2.6 Supporting Documents

In order to enable ACPSEM to assess your application, you must include certified copies (and translated, where applicable, see 2.8 Translation of Documents) of these documents:

- official evidence of your name and date of birth, such as certified copies of your birth certificate or the identification page of your current passport;
- official evidence of change of name, where applicable;
- degree certificates for all your qualifications;
- course transcripts for all your qualifications;
- evidence of any registration as a medical physicist;
- evidence of professional experience, including referees' reports; and
- evidence of English language ability.

2.7 Certified Copies of Documents

A certified copy is a photocopy of a document which a certifying officer has attested is a true copy of the original document and that they have sighted that original document.

Each photocopied page of your documentation must be certified on the face and must show clearly:

- the words "certified true copy of the original";
- the signature of the certifying officer; and
- the name and address or provider/registration number of the certifying officer.

It must be possible from the information provided for ACPSEM to contact the certifying officer if necessary. Certification by a member of your family or by your migration agent is not acceptable.

Please do not send original documents to ACPSEM, except for your IELTS Test Report Form (where required).

A certifying officer may be:

In Australia:

- Justice of the Peace
- Magistrate
- registered legal practitioner
- Commissioner for Declarations
- Commissioner for Affidavits
- registered medical practitioner
- bank officer with five or more continuous years of experience
- Australian Public Service officer with five or more continuous years of service

In countries other than Australia:

- Officers approved by the authorities in your country to provide notarial services. This may be a Notary Public or a Solicitor.

2.8 Translation of Documents

All documents you send to ACPSEM must be translated into English.

If your documents are translated in a country outside Australia, the translator must be approved by the authorities in the country where the translation is made. Ask the Australian Embassy, High Commission or Consulate for advice if you are unsure.

If your documents are translated in Australia, the translator must be accredited by the National Accreditation Authority for Translators and Interpreters (NAATI) – <http://www.naati.com.au/>. Translators are listed in the Yellow Pages website <http://www.yellowpages.com.au/>.

2.9 Appeals

If you receive a negative assessment, you can lodge an appeal with ACPSEM and request a review of the assessment. Your request must be in writing and a non-refundable appeal fee (see 2.5 Fees for more information on fees). Your appeal must be lodged within 12 weeks of the date of the decision.

Your request for a review should include the reasons why you disagree with the assessment by ACPSEM and any supplementary information or documents that you consider support your claims.

If you are considering making an appeal, you are advised to contact ACPSEM to discuss your case before submitting a formal request for a review.

2.10 After your skills assessment

If you have received a skills assessment, you need to include it with your migration application to Australia's Department of Immigration and Border Protection. They require applicants lodging a General Skilled Migration application to include all the documents that were provided with their application for a skills assessment. A positive skills assessment for your nominated occupation is only one of the requirements that will be considered by the Australian migration authorities in your application for migration.

It is in your interest to make certified copies of your skills assessment for your own use, as it may be required for other purposes.

Note that successfully migrating to Australia as a Medical Physicist is no guarantee of membership of ACPSEM, employment as a Medical Physicist in Australia, inclusion on any current or future list of registered Medical Physicists, or acceptance into any accreditation program for a sub-discipline of Medical Physics, nor does it imply that ACPSEM considers that you are competent in a particular sub-discipline of Medical Physics.

Employment prospects will depend on the prevailing economic factors in Australia at the time, the type of work you are seeking and the availability of that work in different parts of Australia, and your suitability for a particular job.

3. Assessment procedures

3.1 General

Applications will be assessed against ACPSEM's requirements (described in this section) by the ACPSEM Assessment Panel under the direction of the ACPSEM Honorary Registrar. ACPSEM aims to finalise assessments within eight weeks of receipt of applications.

Applicants must meet all of ACPSEM's educational, professional and English language requirements to receive a positive skills assessment.

3.2 Assessment Guidelines

3.2.1 Educational and Professional requirements

Applicants must provide evidence that they meet one of the following categories of educational and professional requirements:

- (a) a four-year degree in Medical Physics; or
- (b) a four-year degree in physics plus 12 months' full-time experience working as a Medical Physicist; or
- (c) a four-year degree in physics plus a Masters or PhD degree in Medical Physics; or
- (d) a three-year degree in physics plus 18 months' full-time experience working as a Medical Physicist; or
- (e) a three-year degree in physics plus a Masters degree in Medical Physics plus 6 months' full-time experience working as a Medical Physicist; or
- (f) a three-year degree in physics plus a PhD degree in Medical Physics.

You are required to provide certified copies of your degree certificates and complete course transcripts, translated into English if necessary, so that ACPSEM can assess your tertiary qualifications.

ACPSEM will assess the educational level of your qualifications using AEI-NOOSR's assessment guidelines. These guidelines are published in AEI-NOOSR's Country Education Profiles (CEPs). To meet ACPSEM's requirements, your degree(s) must be assessed by ACPSEM as comparable to the relevant Australian qualification according to the guidelines published in the CEP for the country the qualification was issued in.

If there is no CEP for your country or your qualifications are not covered by the guidelines of an existing CEP, your qualifications can still be assessed on an individual basis. ACPSEM may contact you to request that you have your qualifications individually assessed by AEI-NOOSR, at your expense, before proceeding with your application.

Experience working as a Medical Physicist requires that you have worked in a position where you have actively and directly applied your knowledge of the principles of physics to the care of patients. Sub-disciplines of medical physics include, but are not limited to, radiation oncology medical physics, the physics of radiological imaging and nuclear medicine medical physics. You are required to submit documentation substantiating your professional experience, including references from your supervisor(s).

3.2.2 English language requirement

You must provide suitable evidence with your application that you have sufficient ability in the English language to meet the standard required for working as a Medical Physicist in the health care environment in Australia. You must provide evidence that:

- you have achieved a minimum score of 7 in all areas - reading, writing, speaking and listening - in the Academic version of the International English Language Testing System (IELTS) test. You must supply your original Test Report Form. Detailed information on the IELTS test is available from www.ielts.org; or
- all of your secondary education was completed in a nominated English-speaking country*; or
- you completed your professional qualifications in a nominated English-speaking country*; or
- you have at least 2 years relevant work experience in the past 5 years in a nominated English-speaking country*.

 A nominated English-speaking country is any of Australia, New Zealand, the United Kingdom, Ireland, Canada or the United States of America.*

A written statement on letterhead of the educational institution or place of employment, plus contact details of the person providing the statement, is considered suitable evidence of English language-based education or employment.

If ACPSEM has any doubt about your English language ability, ACPSEM reserves the right to request that you provide the required evidence (see above) by taking the IELTS test.
